GAIA. WILL YOU MARRY ME?

Long ago, there was a girl named GAIA, as captivating as the EARTH itself. Her long brown hair danced in the wind, and her eyes, as deep as the ocean, were surrounded by freckles that glowed like tiny STARS. One day, Gaia crossed paths with a charming young man and the moment their eyes met, they felt something CLICK, an undeniable spark that would tie their souls together.

year 2100

The young man quickly began his research and discovered that the sky's brightness was due to countless objects abandoned in space over the years. He also learned that, not too long ago, there had been an attempt to bring decommissioned satellites back to Earth, by dropping them into Point Nemo. However, no nation had ever taken responsibility for retrieving the satellites from the sea, leaving the ocean floor littered with them.

Someone stole our STARRY SKY.

We gave it everything, didn't we?
It's hard to believe we'll never see the stars again.

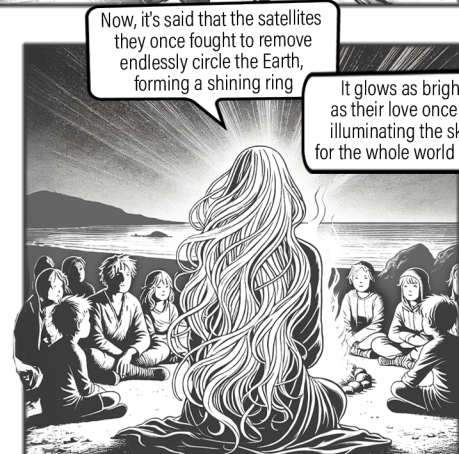

It's feels like a part of us is gone forever...

... together, we can shine brighter than the stars

Years passed, and despite their relentless efforts, the sky grew more crowded. The number of space launches soared exponentially.

It was then the young man realized a painful truth he would never keep his promise he made to himself - ask Gaia to marry him under a beautiful starry sky... But even with this silent regret, their love continued - until the day he vanished

AND... GAIA SAID YES!
